AMF

FROM THE MAYOR

I'm a strong believer in teamwork - and in being the very best you can be, whether it's the organization we work for or as individuals.

The annual Fifty and Over Games provide inspiring examples of both.

Whether its basketball, bowling, tennis, track or the many other events, each year the competitors exhibit teamwork, determination and sportsmanship, setting examples we can all be proud of.

The competitors also serve as strong role models as we pursue our priority of making Louisville a healthier city. Fitness and physical activity can, and should be, a lifelong goal.

It's an honor to host this great competition again this year. Good luck to all competitors!

Greg Fischer
Mayor, Louisville Metro

FROM THE DIRECTOR

Each year, hundreds of inspiring stories unfold at Louisville's Fifty and Over Games. They are told by normal citizens who have found that, later in life, the desire to compete in physical ways still burns deeply within them. More will be written again this year, as senior athletes of all skills and abilities descend to various sites throughout Louisville from May 14 to 22.

Metro Parks has adjusted the Fifty and Over Games through the years to meet the needs of the competitors, and we've done so again this year by adding two events, aquatics and pickle ball, and making the times more suitable for working competitors. In addition to being the premiere sporting competition for seniors in the Louisville area, it's also one of the marquee social events. Fun, fellowship and competition; those are the overriding goals of the Fifty and Over Games. It is a great privilege to be able to host this inspirational and exciting local event once again. Whether you're here as a competitor, a family member or you just want to watch, welcome!

Director, Metro Parks
